

NORTHWESTERN UNIVERSITY
Judd A. and Marjorie Weinberg
College of Arts and Sciences
Department of African American Studies

2008 Kreeger Wolf Lecturer

Thavolia Glymph

*Black and White Women in the Nineteenth Century South:
The Human Experience of Oppressive Rule*

Dr. Glymph is Associate Professor of African & African American Studies and History at Duke University, as well as Interim Chair for African & African American Studies. She is the author of several essays on the history of slavery and emancipation in the U.S., race in America, U.S. economics, southern women, and African American women. Her most recent work is Out of the House of Bondage: The Transformation of the Plantation Household (2008). Her current writing and research focuses on women in the Civil War, the geography of the plantation household, and Civil War veterans in Egypt.

Tuesday, October 21, 2008

4:00 pm

Swift 107

Reception to follow
Free and Open to the public

NORTHWESTERN
UNIVERSITY